Understand the rules of great communication

Great Presenters

A strong story

That works on paper first

Simple visual aids

That help the audience, not the speaker

Said with impact

As yourself, with skill

The building blocks of a presentation

Understand the audience

Identify key messages

Build a strong story

Add interest and impact

Add a strong start and finish

Create simple visuals

Rehearse for fluency & confidence

Fit, Focus and Flair

The three pillars of a powerful presentation

Great presenters do three things

FIT

They build the message around the audience

FOCUS

They say less, and say it earlier

FLAIR

They make easy to remember

Pillar one

FIT

Understand your audience, then build the message to fit them.

Two sets of priorities

Two sets of priorities

Understand the Audience

Who

Who is in the room, and who really decides.

The C-suite roles, and the operational leaders below them.

What

What they care about and the numbers they watch.

Where

How the region changes the priorities.

What matters in the UK is not what matters in Malaysia.

How

How they think, and so how to pitch.

The right language, the right metrics, the depth of expert knowledge you need.

Why

The deeper motive that earns attention.

and how your why connects to theirs.

Different Audiences – Different Needs

	C-suite leader	Operational leader
Buys	The why, and the future	The how, and the now
Cares about	Strategy, financials, market position, risk	Implementation, workflow, resource, results now
Language	Abstract, outcome, vision	Concrete, specific, step by step
Proof	ROI, market impact, peer benchmarks	Metrics, timelines, ease of use
Their metric	Margin, returns, growth, licence to operate	Cost to serve, cycle time, error and accuracy rates

What is relevant to your audience

Towards success

Opportunity. Choices.

Away from danger

Less risk. Less volatility.

Every audience is moving towards something, or away from something. Find out which.

Three ways to add Fit

Ask them

Before you write a word

Stand in their shoes

What matters most?

Test the story

On someone who will tell you the truth

AI can help with a detailed prompt:

Think like a BCG consultant. I'm talking about X, to Y, here is the message I want them to receive, help me create a story that will engage with their priorities, use measures and outcomes that matter most to them, and at a level of detail that is appropriate. Ask me any questions that will help you give me a better answer

Pillar two

FOCUS

Key messages only. Leave the details for the handout.

Welsh proverb

If you chase two rabbits, both will escape.

Three ways to add Focus

Think few to many

Build from one point, do not reduce from fifty

Find the Big Idea

One sentence, that explains your argument

Use the rule of three

Three things, no more

Think few to many

It is much easier to build a story from one main point than to reduce fifty points down to one.

Find your Big Idea

The one line that summarises everything – like a hook

We have reinvented the mobile phone

I have a dream

We will fight them on the beaches

Your Argument in a Single Sentence

This is the smartest, easiest to use mobile phone on the market

Before you start to write your story,

...identify what exactly you are arguing for.

In a single sentence.

It takes time

But it is worth the effort.

Use the rule of three

Three beats – Has a rhythm – it sticks in the mind

Pillar three

FLAIR

Make the message unforgettable by doing the fundamentals brilliantly.

Why Flair matters

Luke Sullivan, advertising

The truth is not the truth until people believe you.

They cannot believe you if they do not know what you are saying.

They cannot know what you are saying if they are not listening.

They will not listen if you are not interesting.

And you will not be interesting unless you say things
imaginatively, originally and freshly.

Three ways to add Flair

To your words and to your slides

Remove clutter

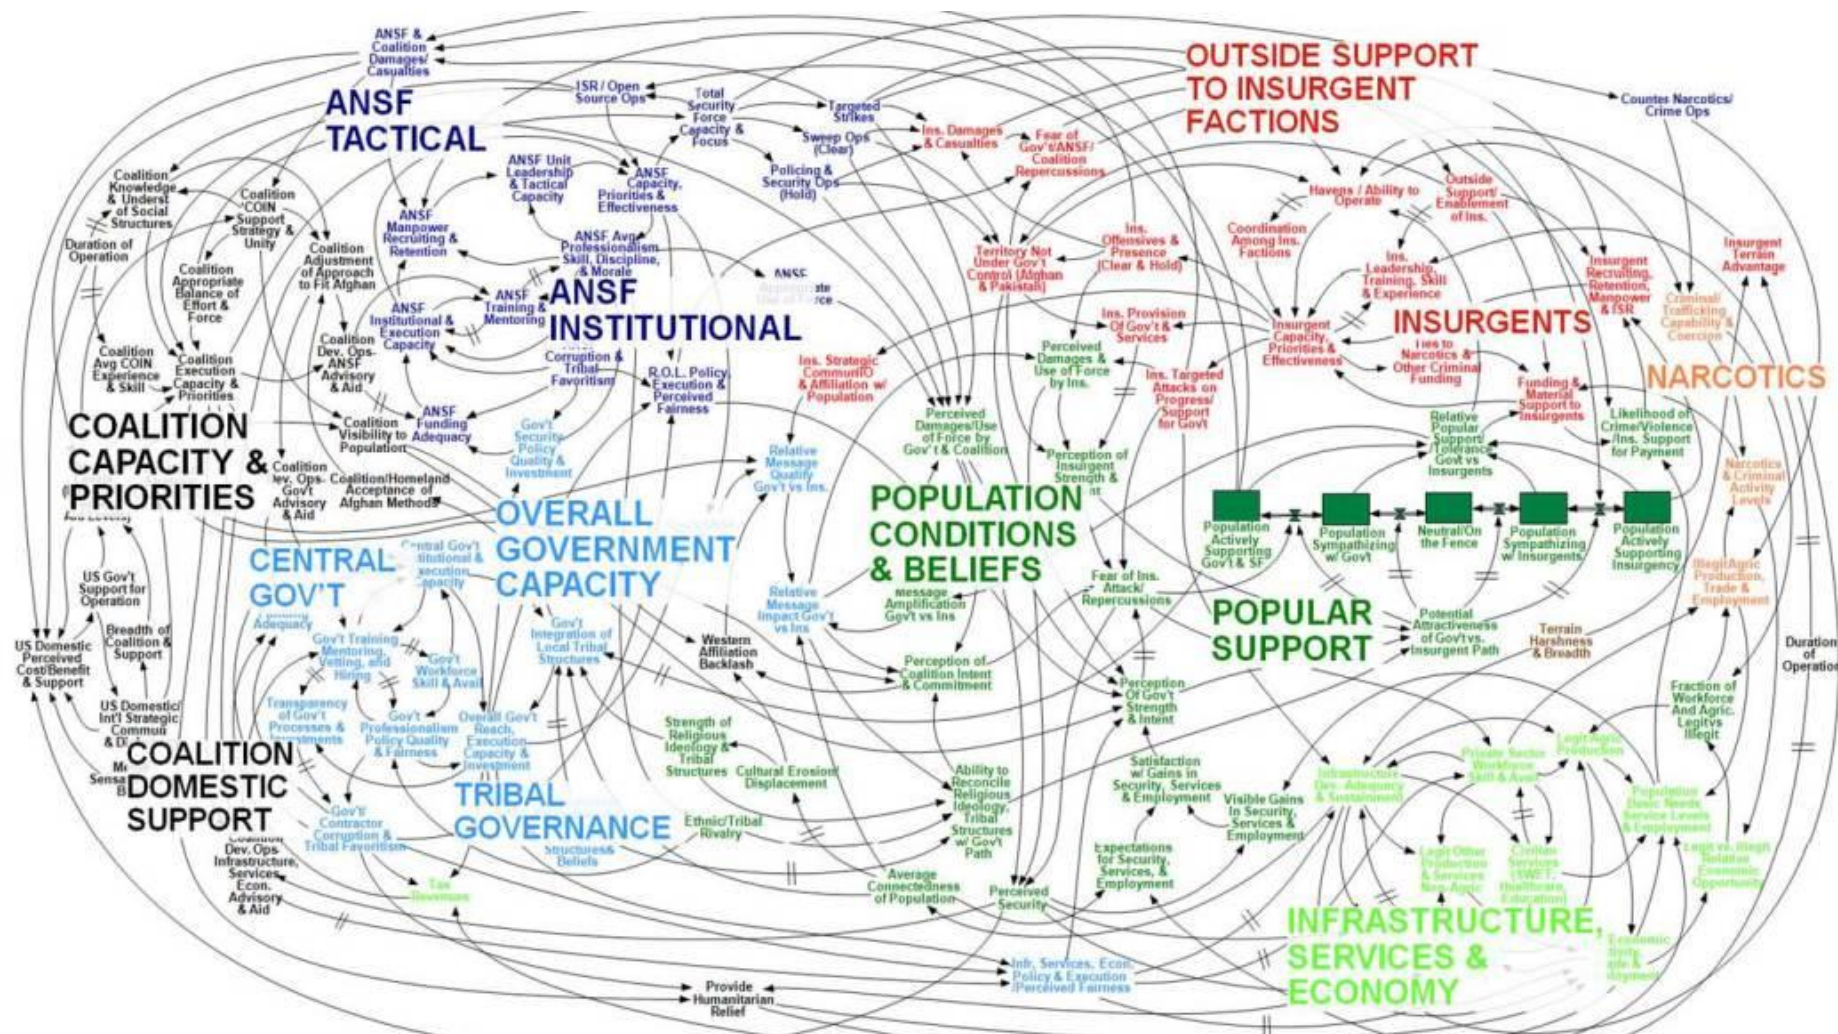

Verbal & visual

Add story structure

Three acts, a prologue and an epilogue

Add interest

Emphatic words, images and ideas

No Clutter

Steve Jobs

No Clutter

1.20" 0.80"

No Clutter

Verbal Clutter

Too much, too many

Detail

Data

Images

Things appearing at the same time

Words

???

Michelangelo on removing clutter

I saw the angel in the marble

...and carved until I set him free.

Add story structure

Start with certainty. Build the argument. End with certainty.

Prologue

Act 1 WHY

Act 2 HOW

Act 3 WHAT

Epilogue

PAST – TO PRESENT

PRESENT

FUTURE

Nine ways to add interest

A story or example

Pictures and images

A fascinating fact

A shocking statistic

An example from life

A rhetorical question

A quotation worth hearing

Video to illustrate

A prop or a demonstration

THE MESSAGE BUSINESS
